

Anutone Proud to be Part of Pride of Mumbai

Royal Opera House with new acoustics re-opens this week

Team Anutone at Royal Opera House during Stretch NRC installation

Almost after 25 years, the pride of Mumbai, a socio-cultural icon, the Royal Opera House opens this week on 20th October with the who's who in attendance for the gala inauguration. The heritage building has been painstakingly restored to as near original condition as possible taking its rightful place back as the jewel in the crown of Mumbai's cultural and theatrical landscape.

This classic landmark auditorium will be staging curated opera, music, dance, drama and movie shows for the cognoscenti and the connoisseur alike. According to the experts the space will also wow the youth of the city and be open for debate, discourse, discussions enriching the arts and culture genre of the urbanscape.

The brief to Anutone was to provide camouflaged yet effective acoustics so as not to mar the original baroque interiors. Hence for sound absorption requirements, Stretch NRC systems have been provided alongwith Strand and SynthPF with Subtex base panels behind some of the insitu perforated gypsum-wood ceiling/paneling carpentry. The elaborately sculpted interiors take care of sound diffusion whereas noise isolation was never an issue for this standalone building on the busy Lamington Road.

In the 50th year of Anutone we are proud to be associated with a precious treasure of Mumbai, the city that we have been faithfully serving since the 1990s. Standby for many such landmark acoustical projects in Mumbai by Anutone!

The restoration was commissioned by the space owners - the royal family of Gondol, the restoration architects to this project were the famous heritage expert Abha Narain Lamba, the acoustical consultants were Jhaveri and Jhaveri and the main interior contractor was Skyway Infra.
